Good Old Corn

The most beautiful green in the world! This was the exclamation of an artist of note when he saw the Indian maize, or American corn, growing for the first time. It is more than that. Longfellow's account of it is from the body of Montezuma, one of the great chiefs of the Aztecs, and the highest utility in the form of the gift of the Good Spirit at the exchange.

Cat Raises Chickens

There is an authentic story of a cat in France that lived on terms of perfect amity with all the animals on the place—dogs, chickens and what not. It so happened that a hen which had a brood of seven chickens was killed accidentally. The cat, which some two weeks before had been deprived of her kittens, appeared to observe the predicament of the seven little chickens. She crawled into their nest and the chickens, looking for warmth, nestled into her warm fur, peeping gratefully. The chickens, fed by their owner, thrived perfectly, and every day the strange sight was presented of their following the mother cat about the premises as if expecting her to find them food after the manner of a hen. —New York Herald.

Good Table Manners

There are innumerable men and women who would rather be found guilty of violation of any of the Ten Commandments than to be guilty of eating with their knives. John Quincy Adams was the first American president who ate with his fork. He acquired the custom in France, and when Adams felt it necessary to explain to guests at the White House that "Mr. Adams couldn't overcome the habit of eating with his knife," he said simply, "by eating with his knife." —George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe and James Madison, done. —Magazine of American History.

Coffin as a Mascot

Mme. Bertha, who was deported from her sumptuous mansion in the West end of London as an "undesirable alien" a couple of years ago, had an upper room, which her servants irreverently called her "vault," hung with somber black curtains, and in the center, mounted on trestles, the most elaborate specimen of the undertaker's art that could be imagined.

It was of polished rosewood, finely worked with silver mountings, very massive. On the name plate was delicately engraved "Bertha Trost." The favorite entertainment of this notorious beauty specialist, and "reincarnation of Marie Antoinette," was a reception to "view my mascot," as she termed this coffin, and she would explain to her startled guests that she kept it near at hand to reconcile her to the idea of death!

Stock Steak

The diner had finished his first course and lay back, frowning at the unvanquished steak before him. Twice in one minute the new waiter made an attempt to clear away and received a sullen dismissal each time.

"Beg pardon, sir," he said at last. "There's a big demand for steak today. We have only three of them in stock, and the other two being in use, we'd be glad if you've finished with this one."

92,000 Pieces in Clock

At Beauvais cathedral there is a clock which is composed of 92,000 separate pieces, having 52 dial plates. This clock gives the time in the big capitals of the world as well as the local hour, the day of the week and month, the rising and setting of the sun, the phases of the moon and tides, as well as considerable other information.

Dogs as Cart Drawers

The useful work performed by dogs in France reminds us that within living memory dogs were employed to draw carts in England for pleasure as well as for the conveyance of fish. In the first half of the nineteenth century they were largely used by workmen and the humbler members of "the fancy" for Sunday outings, says the London Chronicle.

The dogs employed were sturdy animals of a mongrel character, generally with a strain of the old English bull mastiff. Twenty miles in and out was nothing to them, and while on these excursions they were sparingly fed on bread soaked in a little beer, which is said to have been a sustaining diet.

Laurel as National Flower

England is fighting now with the rose as her national flower. The United States has no national flower, recognized as such, but the mountain laurel comes nearer to being the right candidate for the honor than any other bloom particularly characteristic of the United States.

The mountain laurel is not found in other lands. It is hardy, permanent, beautiful and widespread in its distribution. The great artist, Henry Turner Bailey, finds in it all the symbolism necessary to make it Uncle Sam's flower.

Why Ships Float

Steel ships differ from those of wood in that their hulls are made of steel plates riveted together, instead of the old method of using wooden planking. They are enabled to float because, being hollow, they have what is called buoyancy. A steel ship displaces a volume of water equal in weight to its own. The principle of buoyancy may be tested by floating an iron pail in a bathtub full of water.

Nothing New Under Sun

The strings of blue beads that the modern girl dons to ward off bronchitis are merely new versions of the strings of blue beads worn in Egypt 1600 years before Christ to keep diseases of the chest at bay, says a writer in the Philadelphia North American. The tiny sealed bottle of mercury which she carried to ward off rheumatism had its prototype in bottles of a strange elixir used in India 30 centuries and more ago.

ABANDON FOOD PREJUDICES

Don't Be Finicky

Be willing to try new foods. Certain plentiful and nourishing foods widely used and enjoyed in one section are practically unknown in other sections of the country. Learn to know ALL the good things; not a few only.

People too easily get into food ruts---insist on eating only the food they are used to and refuse to give a fair trial to others. This causes undue demand for certain staples, with resulting scarcity or high prices when crops are short. At the same time other valuable foods may be relatively cheap and available. A striking instance of this is failure fully to appreciate rice--a valuable source of starch--when potatoes are scarce and high. Another example is refusal in certain sections to use anything but wheat as a breadstuff when corn--a valuable cereal widely used elsewhere as a breadstuff--is plentiful and relatively cheap.

Cook Food Properly

Learn how to cook all kinds of staple foods and to serve them in a variety of ways. Simple dishes well prepared are better than expensive foods badly cooked.

Many persons are prejudiced against certain good foods because, when first tried, the foods were improperly cooked or prepared.

Remove from your vocabulary "don't like" or "can't eat."

Most individual prejudices against widely popular foods either imaginary or baseless.

Try to like every simple food; give it a fair trial.

Try This One

Hint to husbands: When drying dishes hold the slippery ones over the rest of the dishes. Then when they slip, the chances of breaking more dishes are increased many times over the more familiar plan of dropping them on the floor. The more dishes you break, you know, the fewer you have to dry. There is no object in drying broken pieces of china. —Kansas City Star.
